every human being has, or has had, sexual problems. we are certainly not the judge of any of that STUFF. it is god given, but certainly misused, by all, probably.

One school would allow man no flavor for his fare and the other would have us all on a straight pepper diet. We want to stay out of this controversy. We do not want to be the arbiter of anyone's sex conduct. We all have sex problems. We'd hardly be human if we didn't. What can we do about them?

We reviewed our own conduct over the years past. Where had we been selfish, dishonest, or inconsiderate? Whom had we hurt? Did we unjustifiably arouse jealousy, suspicion or bitterness? Where were we at fault, what should we have done instead? We got this all down on paper and looked at it.

In this way we tried to shape a sane and sound ideal for our future sex life. We subjected each relation to this test - was it selfish or not? We asked God to mold our ideals and help us to live up to them. We remembered always that our sex powers were God-given and therefore good, neither to be used lightly or selfishly nor to be despised and loathed.

what is desired is that people can see what pleases some people, via classified "xxx" film.

since i am a red blooded american white male, i can only speak to that criteria, as well as having been present, when my sexual partner seemed to have enjoyed similar, or like activities. further more, every soul is unique to god, PERIOD. only god knows the secret of every heart, and what they desire in the way of receiving pleasure, as well as being blessed, in the way of giving pleasure. god will instruct such intimate knowledge to each and every individual that is in the line up, for god's glory. please do not think you know what god might decide, for other people; thanks.

Whatever our ideal turns out to be, we must be willing to grow toward it. We must be willing to make amends where we have done harm, provided that we do not bring about still more harm in so doing. In other words, we treat sex as we would any other problem. In meditation, we ask God what we should do about each specific matter. The right answer will come, if we want it.

God alone can judge our sex situation.
